Volume 2, Number 2

June is American Rivers Month!

This June marks South Carolina's 15th year of participating in American Rivers Month. Throughout the month of June, river enthusiasts from across the state will celebrate South Carolina's rich river heritage by getting involved in a variety of river-related activities.

American Rivers Month is a nationwide celebration of our country's rivers designed to bring about greater awareness and appreciation of our river resources. This popular program began in Massachusetts and, through a grassroots movement, has spread across the entire country. Over the years, this program has generated widespread interest and participation in river-related activities such as fishing, canoeing, kayaking, and riverside hiking.

The Water Resources Division of the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources serves as Rivers Month coordinator for South Carolina. Each year, in our role as coordinator, we encourage groups to participate in Rivers Month, compile a list of events in a newsletter, and distribute it widely throughout the state. This year, we've dedicated an entire edition of South Carolina River News to highlighting Rivers Month events.

South Carolina has over 11,000 miles of river that offer a multitude of opportunities for all ages, interests, and abilities. So plan to take the time during the month of June to enjoy and appreciate some of South Carolina's beautiful rivers.

Attend a river festival! Go paddling! Explore a scenic river! Go fishing! Adopt a landing! Go on a riverside hike! All these events are happening during the month of June! All you need to do is sign up!

Great Expectations

The Adopt-a-Landing Program

A new program of the SC DNR is destined to make South Carolina's boat landings nicer places to be. The Adopt-a-Landing program is designed to clean up and promote the stewardship of boat ramps along the state's rivers and lakes. This program is also intended to educate the public on the harmful effects of litter on the environment.

Housed in the SC DNR's Water Resources Division as part of its River Conservation Program, Adopt-a-Landing was developed in response to the increasing problem of litter at our state's boat landings. As anyone who has experienced a trash-cluttered boat ramp knows, our outdoor experiences can be negatively impacted by the presence of litter. In addition to minimizing our aesthetic experiences, litter can have a severely detrimental effect on our rivers and on all the aquatic life that depends on them.

Participation in the Adopt-a-Landing program is open to any community or civic organizations, businesses, individuals, and government organizations that would like to help control litter and improve the environment.

The adoption process is easy: A group chooses a specific landing that it wants to clean and agrees to clean it three times a year. One cleanup is held in June, during American Rivers Month. Another cleanup is held in September, in conjunction with the worldwide cleanup efforts of Beach Sweep/River Sweep. The third cleanup is held in the winter, sometime during the months of January or February. The SC DNR, in recognition of the group's involvement in the program, will erect a sign at the landing bearing the adopting group's name.

The success of the Adopt-a-Landing program is dependent on the dedication of volunteers. So we need your help! If you or your organization are interested in adopting a landing, please let us know! We also need help in identifying landings that are particularly needy of a clean up.

For information on how you can become involved, contact Ellis Farr, SC Department of Natural Resources, Water Resources Division, 1201 Main Street, Suite 1100, Columbia, SC 29201, (803) 737-0800.

Special Events and Festivals

Ninth Annual Edisto Riverfest

Colleton State Park

Thursday, June 6 through Sunday, June 9

The world's longest freeflowing blackwater river and the state's first designated canoe and kayak trail, the Edisto River, is the setting for this river exploration. Outdoor education workshops, equipment displays, and music will highlight the weekend. River trips are half-day, full-day, and overnight excursions.

River Currents

The final report of the Edisto River Basin Project will be available this month. The culmination of a multi-year, citizens-based planning effort, this report contains a management plan for the natural, cultural, and economic resources of the 3,120 square mile river basin. It also details the methods and maps employed in the project's evaluation of the basin's resources. Those interested in receiving a copy of the plan, please call (803) 737-0800.

During 1996, the major focus of the Lynches Scenic River Advisory Council is to complete a plan for long-term management of a 54-mile segment of the Lynches River. Recent accomplishments include finalization of recommendations to deal with river issues including water quality and recreation/public access. The advisory council will soon begin a special project to characterize the scenic character of the Lynches. What makes the river aesthetically pleasing? Is it the sights, sounds, smells, tastes, touches, or a unique combination of stimuli to the senses? The council will attempt to answer these questions through photography and written descriptions. This special project will result in the development of an aesthetic standard for the river and thereby enable the local community to manage the resource based on aesthetic as well as other considerations. Meetings of the Lynches River Advisory Council are held monthly and are open to the public. For more information contact Becky Rideout at (803) 737-0800.

The Broad Scenic River Advisory Council is working to maintain the unspoiled natural character of the Broad River corridor while protecting the rights of private property owners and assuring the continuation of traditional land uses such as farming, raising livestock, and harvesting timber. To accomplish this goal, the council recently formed the Broad River Land Registry, a voluntary stewardship program for river-bordering landowners. To join the registry, the landowner enters a land management agreement with the South Carolina Scenic Rivers Program. There are four options available to interested landowners through the program including land registration, a memorandum of agreement, a conservation easement, and land donation. In addition to the land registry, the advisory council continues to sponsor river-related activities including canoe trips and an annual meeting.

The Water Resources Division of the SC DNR has begun working with the citizens group, Friends of the Reedy, to lay the groundwork for developing a river corridor plan for the Reedy River in Greenville. An approximately 2-year, citizens-based process to create a management plan for this significant urban river is set to begin later this summer.

The Lower Saluda Scenic River as well as the Broad and Congaree Rivers have been included in the recent Columbia area river-front planning effort conducted by The River Alliance. Enhanced river access for recreational uses is a major feature of The River Alliance plan, so too is conservation of the natural, cultural, and scenic qualities of the rivers. Greenways with walking and biking trails, a rowing course, a city dock, an archaeological park, and a whitewater paddling center are examples of the many suggestions within the plan. In addition to river-front greenways, conservation proposals include promoting development policies to encourage clustered housing in "river villages." Adjacent to the river and to their sides, the river villages would retain undeveloped land owned in common by the residents. The plan also includes many exciting ideas for the Columbia urban core adjacent to the Congaree River.
